

WPO Member Confidentiality Agreement

Due to the sensitive nature of information discussed in the meetings of the Women Presidents' Organization (WPO), to protect the privacy, both personal and professional, of all in attendance, I agree not to divulge any non-public information learned during WPO meetings to any third party and to treat said information with discretion and respect.

WPO Member Code of Conduct Pledge

The Women Presidents' Organization (WPO) is committed to ethical practices. Each of our members sets an example for her peers by her pursuit of business achievement with honesty and integrity. These values are vital to the professional standing of the WPO and its members. To that end, we have adopted the following Code of Conduct Pledge, to inspire ethical behavior on behalf of all members:

WPO Member Code of Conduct Pledge

I pledge:

- To conduct my business and business relationships with honesty and integrity; to avoid deceptive business practices; and to obey laws and public policies governing my business.
- I understand and accept that executing this Code of Conduct Pledge is a condition of membership in the WPO, and renewal of membership, and my failure to comport with this Pledge may result in the denial of a membership application or membership renewal application to the WPO, or revocation or suspension of my WPO membership.
- I understand if I were to add any additional lines of business to my primary business, I cannot prevent a current member or potential member in that industry from joining the chapter.
